LARGE ENROLLMENT FOREIGN PUPILS EXPECTED

Many Changes Among Teaching Staff

Grayling schools will open Tuesday morning, September 7th, and a large enrollment is anticipated. Also there is good indication of a large enrollment of foreign students. Grayling schools have been kept up to a high standard with the result that many outside pupils are attracted to this city.

On Monday afternoon, Sept. 6, at 1:30 o'clock there will be a meeting at the school house of the teachers, where plans for the coming year will be laid before them.

Chicago and Milwaukee are building a highway 200 feet wide to connect the two cities. Which only will make it even more difficult to answer the old question "why does a chicken cross the road?"

Trap Shooters

A number of thrilling and interesting events took place at the traps Sunday morning, where rivalry is becoming keen. C. P. Mickelson again led in the scoring with T. E. Douglas avowing that he was going to bump him out of first place, but lost out by one for a tie.

Junior Hanson surprised the old-timers by killing 18 birds out of 25, much in contrast to his first attempt at the opening shoot when he failed to connect with a single one. He is getting his eye on the target in great shape and bids favorable to out-rival the old timers after a little more practice.

Following is the score of last Sunday's shoot:

T. E. Douglas	21
O. W. Hanson	19
Holger Hanson	18
Marius Hanson	19
C. P. Mickelson	22

Junior Hanson	16
Dell Wheeler	6
Esbarn Olson	14

Regular shooting days are Thursdays at 4:00 p. m. and Sunday mornings at 9:30. Everyone invited to participate. Shells may be purchased on the grounds.

SHRINERS COMING FRIDAY NOON

TO STAGE PARADE ON MAIN ST.

Band, Chanters and Patrol, 11:30 A. M.

Grayling is to have a taste of high masonic honors Friday noon, August 27th, when members of Elf Khurafeh temple, nobles of the Mystic Shrine of Bay City, will stop off just long enough to stage a street parade.

The special train will arrive at 11:30 o'clock sharp Friday noon and promptly the members will stage a spectacular street parade. They will be accompanied by their own band of 50 pieces and Chanters and patrol. Those who have ever seen the plumed knights in action will surely want to be on hand at this time to see them again. Those who have not seen them will be sorry if they miss this opportunity. Come out and enjoy a fine spectacle. It costs nothing and is only offered by the members of Elf Khurafeh temple as a courtesy to the people of Grayling. This organization has been on a pilgrimage to Cheboygan where they assisted in initiating a large class in the order and are stopping off at Gaylord, Grayling and West Branch, making friendly calls on the people of these cities. Grayling, like the other cities, is fortunate in having this courtesy extended to them.

Everyone come out Friday at 11:30 a. m., on Main street. And bring the whole family and your neighbors. You will enjoy this affair.

SEELEY WAKELEY PROPERTY CHANGES HANDS

The fine resort property of Seeley Wakeley has been sold to Dr. Watkins of Detroit who is taking immediate possession. This consists of about four acres of land and the home, together with a number of cottages, which are located about twelve miles down the AuSable on one of the finest parts of this famous stream.

This has been the home of the Wakeleys since about the year 1878. It has been a favorite place for fishermen and hunters for half a century. Dr. Watkins, it is understood, is planning on making this into a club, where there others interested in the project with him.

Mr. and Mrs. Wakeley have purchased the late George Smith home on Maple street, and will move into it soon.

The Story Of Deward

(An interesting article taken from the files of the Avalanche, dated August 29, 1901, telling about the once thriving lumber town of Deward in the western part of Frederic township. Deward today is an almost deserted community. The article reads as follows:—)

Deward, Crawford County
Having been unable to visit the site of the new mill being built by the estate of David Ward, or to learn the plan concerning their railroad, we give the following from the Detroit Journal:

A project inaugurated by the David Ward estate recalls old times in lower Michigan—times supposed to have vanished forever—when lively lumber towns sprang up almost in a single night around the place selected as the site of their sawmills by a few lumber operators. There are a few of the older residents of the "ate who will not grow reminiscent of former scenes and half forgotten times as they read the details of the project.

The anachronism of establishing a new Michigan lumber town in the twentieth century is what the Ward estate will undertake. The new town will be located in Crawford county. At the same time the estate is preparing to add to Michigan's railway system a short but important and convenient link.

The new town is springing up from the earth almost, with a sawmill as its center, a cluster of houses for its employees and a store or two. It will not, however, be the wild and wide open town of the days of great lumber operations a generation ago, for the Ward estate owns all the town and all the standing timber which will feed the mill, and in these quieter days the morale of the place can be better controlled. The new town and postoffice is named after the late David Ward. Orthographically it will appear to the eye as Deward. Deward is about eight miles northwest of Frederic, a Michigan Central railroad station, eight miles almost due north from Grayling.

The town is established primarily for the handling of an immense area of timber, 70,000 acres of it in Crawford, Otsego and Kalkaska counties, an area equal to three townships. The tract contains a variety of pine and hardwoods and it is on the land grown with hardwood that the farmers will follow the tree chopper. This mill is the finest in Crawford county, and is nearly completed. It cost nearly $100,000. It will be started within a month and there is from 25 to 30 years of work before it, and the town will have plenty of time in which to grow and change from a lumber headquarters to an agricultural center. George K. Root, a son of the late Charles Root of Detroit, son-in-law to the late David Ward and one of the executors of the Ward estate, will be in active charge of affairs in Deward. Deward is to be the headquarters of the Detroit & Charlevoix railroad.

The importance of the Detroit & Charlevoix railroad as a regular link between the Michigan Central and the G. R. & I., and the eastern and western sides of the state, from Bay City to Mackinac on the east side, and from Reed City to Mackinac on the west side.

The Detroit & Mackinac railroad runs from Frederic, Crawford county, where a junction is formed with the Michigan Central, northwesterly to South Arm, Charlevoix county, on the south arm of Pine lake. The south arm of the lake has a channel of 16 to 17 feet and any vessel which can enter Charlevoix harbor can pass on to the terminal dock of the railroad. The Michigan Central and the Detroit & Charlevoix combined will make an almost straight line from Detroit to South Arm, through Saginaw, Bay City and Grayling. The Detroit & Charlevoix effects a junction with the G. R. & I. at Alba, Antrim county.

Michigan Central has been engaged as general superintendent. Mr. Haire started in with the Michigan Central as a messenger boy in Jackson and was advanced through the positions of telegraph operator, train dispatcher and train master until he became assistant division superintendent of the Bay City and Mackinac division with headquarters at Bay City.

The time table will be so arranged that passengers leaving Detroit at 3 in the morning will reach South Arm at 6:30 the same day.

It is a country of blueberries, wild blackberries and wintergreen, and has every feature to delight the sportsman and tourist while it is passing from the wild state to the settled agricultural condition.

SOME of the young girls of Grayling have been exceedingly fortunate this summer in having supervised recreation. Miss Ruth Cavanaugh, who during the past year was supervisor of physical education for girls in the Grayling schools, was engaged for the summer for that purpose and has given the young girls a wonderful time. There have been several outings and a Gypsy rover trip and other group features, and besides, almost daily, Miss Cavanaugh has had classes of both girls and boys swimming at Lake Margrethe, and classes in tennis and other games. The young misses have been so busy that many of them feel that their vacation has gone by almost too quickly. For this splendid work the parents have Mrs. Bauman to thank, although she would much rather that the public did not know about it. All expenses are paid by that lady and it is one of the finest things that has ever been done for Grayling young people. We hope some day that some real boy-loving scout leader will take hold of our young men and give them such a privilege as has been afforded the girls this year. We are sure that would lighten the duties of the probate court.

THE HOME PAPER

Men everywhere are coming more to understand and appreciate the influence of the rural press in the affairs of this country.

Only a few years ago we were told that the local newspaper was passing—that it would not compete with the dailies and weeklies of the big cities—and that it must yield to the inevitable.

But the prophets were wrong. It is true the local daily or weekly cannot supply in detail all of the news of the world. It cannot compete with its city contemporaries in illustrations and features. And yet the local paper is still with us, and it is growing in strength and usefulness as the years go by. Some of the reasons for its existence are summed up in this paragraph from an exchange.

The local paper should be found in every home. No children should grow up ignorant who can be taught to appreciate the home paper. It is said to be the stepping stone of intelligence in all those matters not to be found in books. Give your children a foreign paper which contains not a word about any person, place or thing, which they saw or perhaps ever heard of, and how could you expect them to be interested. But let them have the home paper and read of people whom they meet and of places of which they are familiar and soon an interest is awakened which increases with every arrival of the local paper. Thus a habit of reading is formed and those children will read the papers all their lives and become intelligent men and women, a credit to their ancestors, strong in the knowledge of the world as it is today.

WHEN TIMBER BURNS

One has only to gaze upon the wide stretches of territory laid waste by forest fires in the upper counties of the state to realize the significance of the oft repeated slogan, "Everybody loses when timber burns." There are spots up in the north country where for miles along the highway the traveler sees the whitened sepulcher of all that remains of once promising forest growth. Like sentinels of death they stand along the bleak trail a warning to the careless person who is liable to leave desolation in his path.

Only the other day a Detroit man spending Sunday on a stream in Cheboygan county lit a cigarette and carelessly flicked a burning match into the grass where he was resting for a few minutes, leaving the scene shortly after to resume his sport. The burning match so carelessly thrown down started a fire that for a while threatened to assume disastrous proportions and had it not been discovered in time by others in the woods, there might have been a timber loss running into thousands of dollars. Plenty of rain over the state in the last few weeks has kept the forest fire loss down to a minimum, but with the coming of the dry autumn days there is a necessity of increased vigilance to prevent these ravages by the fire fiend. The Michigan Press Association stands pledged to carry on a campaign of education against the criminal carelessness of starting forest fires, a campaign that we hope some day will result in saving to future generations the heritage that is so richly theirs.

FOREST'S VALUE IS SET FORTH

Forests enter into every business and social activity. They are essential to civilization. They are in demand more each year for recreation and the restoration of health. Woods, fresh air and exercise in the open bind up the ragged sleeve of care better than medicine. It is Nature's prescription, says the New York State College of Forestry, Syracuse University.

The forests furnish employment for one million three hundred and fifty thousand persons. They supply wages annually amounting to approximately one billion, four hundred million dollars. These industries represent an investment of twelve billion dollars. In value of output this industry ranks third in the United States. But the forests stand second to none as an essential resource of prosperity and civilization.

Each Faces a Duty

The universal importance of the forest imposes upon each person the duty to conserve and protect the forests. The chief factor in forest conservation is fire prevention. Fire is the great destroyer. Forest fires are due almost entirely to human carelessness and therefore may be almost entirely prevented by the exercise of due care which means the observance of good forest manners. When we are in the forests we should not try to prove that intelligence and decent citizenship is a cloak that can be thrown off.

We do not burn our homes, our offices, our personal property. We go to the assistance of him whose home is burning. We do all we can to prevent such fires. This is because we appreciate the necessity for co-operation, assistance and protection, in preserving the home and office.

There is, so far as fire is concerned, no difference between saving the home and office in finished lumber and the same lumber before it is finished or as it grows in the forest. If it burns it is your loss because the next time you pay for a home or office or pay rent the costs are going to be just that much higher because of the reduced supply of construction material. Your home and office are insured—they can be rebuilt. How much worse is it to burn the forest that is not insured and which can not be rebuilt in your time?

Destroy the Soil

Forest fires often destroy the forest soil so that it can not be grown over. Forest fires exterminate wild life including the birds. Birds are of vital importance to successful agriculture. Forest fires cause rivers, springs and brooks to dry up, thus killing all fish and game. The forest is the chief source of pure drinking water and water for the dairy and agricultural land. The forest is part of the National defense.

For all these reasons the forest should receive even better protection than the structures erected by the hand of man. It is important to each person that this national resource be saved from the terrible annual devastation caused by human carelessness. It would cost 300 million dollars and require 300 years at our present rate of planting to reforest the area burned over in 1924.

Golf may be a pastime for the aged, but it certainly does wonders for the vocabulary.

Philosophy, with a woman, takes the form of a conviction that her freckles are attractive.

Otto Kahn, the banker, in an address says that the American women are not frivolous when there is serious work to be done. We'll say not, especially when it's such serious work as lecturing the old man for staying out too late on Saturday night.

The property consists of about 280 acres of land in the midst of which is a beautiful lake, making it a most ideal and exclusive recreational spot. It marks the site of the first fish hatchery in northern Michigan when much attention was given to the raising of speckled trout and the grayling fish. Archie Bebbitt managed the hatchery for Mr. Pomeroy at that time. The property has been owned by Mr. Pomeroy for 50 years. At one time he spent much of his time here, but of late years he has come to spend but a few days at various times during the summers. Mr. Wright and a party of friends are here at present, the former making plans to improve the buildings and grounds. He expects to spend most of his time here.

An Ideal Vacation Land

Michigan is a playground for millions. Its wooded wilderness, rich in wild life and natural beauties, brings those who once enjoy it, back,—and back again.

Heavy inroads are being made into this treasure land, by the DEMON FIRE.

Fire Can Destroy it!

Printed below are five important FIRE PREVENTION RULES, constantly practiced by all trained woodsmen. Study and apply these and pass them on to others. Education in the use of these methods will quickly overcome the carelessness which now causes so much loss.

How to Prevent Fires

1. Matches—Be sure your match is dry before you throw it away.
2. Tobacco—Be sure that pipe ashes and cigar or cigarette stubs are dead before you throw them away. Never throw them into brush, leaves, or needles.
3. Making Camp—Before building camp fire, keep a fire escape or fire extinguisher handy.
4. Breaking Camp—Never break camp until your fire is out.
5. Brush Burn—Never burn brush or brush in windy weather or while there is the slightest danger that the fire will get away.

Farm Bureau Notes

R. D. Bailey, Co. Agricultural Agent

"Not Failure, but Low Aim, is Crime"

Observations on the Summer's Travel
Your county agent has been steadily going from farm to farm all summer, using for that purpose, all the time that could be spared from office work.

He is testing the soil on each farm for lime requirements, having in view the correction of soil conditions with agricultural lime, that farmers may grow a larger acreage of the legumes (red clover, sweet clover, alfalfa); that these may be established where now they fail; that they may grow a heavy tonnage where now they grow sparsely,—all to the end that the soil may be kept fertile and made more fertile, and that the farmer may have home-grown feed for more poultry and cattle.

While it will take until late fall to complete this work on the thorough basis on which we are attempting it, yet we, as anyone would, have made some observations as we passed from farm to farm.

Take 'Em For What They are Worth

(1) Here is a farm, run for over forty years—clean, no weeds, little or no quack grass, no dock, no mullein, no milkweed, no thistles on roadside or in fields. Good sized farm, too. No old, broken fence posts littering the roadside. Not an armful of broken-down tools or other rubbish on the place. Justifiable pride in looks of farm and home. Owner has found that nastiness, untidiness, disorder, dreariness, do not necessarily go with farming.

(2) Some other farms—mud, cow manure, little less than a car load of junk lying around, things dropped where used.

(3) Oat smut on lots of farms. Could have been prevented in one hour's time by treating seed at cost of one cent a bushel.

(4) Too many farms not getting their share of the income that they might have had from sale of cottage cheese.

(5) Not enough new fruit trees planted this spring.

(6) Practically every farmer herd-

ing the cattle in a barn yard (that he will never plow) all night, from spring to late fall, with loss of vast quantities of liquid and solid manure that the farm desperately needs. The farmer will probably say, "My roughage (hay or corn stalks) that he could have raised with this fertilizer."

(7) Too many nasty barn yards to be seen from the road and house.

(8) Too much cultivating corn once in a row. Lots of weeds and quack grass left. Too much kidding ourselves. "We will get it cleaner next year." A lot of farmers cutting ripe thistles right in with oats to get into the stable manure, to re-seed the farm.

(9) Warm welcome and kindly spirit shown to county agent at most farm homes.

(10) Cannot help wishing that the good women of the farm homes were better provided with labor-saving and step-saving devices—well-placed cupboards, handy woodshed, wood box filled from outside sink, clean turn pump in kitchen, drinking water pumped by engine or windmill into barrel in kitchen, and overflowing to stock tank. An opening, with broad shelf should be placed in wall between kitchen and dining room. Have seen but one in the county.

Most of these improvements can be made by poor folk if they want to make them. Good winter and stormy summer day work.

(11) Ladies, I am surprised that you get along with so few shrubs and flowers. Don't you crave them?

(12) Just as we were filled with despair over flowerless, untidy door yards, we came to a farm home of hard working people, and what do you suppose we found just inside the front fence? Flowers! Flowers across the whole frontage, just inside the front fence, and up the path to the house! Candytuft, dahlias, heliotrope, nasturtiums in brave and beautiful array! We looked. We gazed. We admired. We praised.

(13) Another door yard—graded, grassy, roomy; beautiful white birch tree. Life worth living there.

(14) That reminds us: In driving from Mt. Pleasant to Lansing we saw many farm lawns as green as grassy, as well mowed with lawn mower as in a city. Regular farmers, too. How come?

(15) Manure and overalls—some people never rise above them.

(16) Charles Corwin and Fred Anderson yard their cattle at night in lots to be cropped some day.

(17) Fine stand new seedling alfalfa in two fields on Andrew Mortenson farm (Beechwood Farm). Hjalmar is certainly showing there what steady, hard well-directed work can do.

(18) Twenty acres splendid stand, splendid lush sweet clover in light seeding of oats on the H. A. Macmillan farm (Bonnie Brae Farm).

(19) Same on C. C. Fink's farm, just across the road in Red Rock wheat and Wolverine oats.

Both farms use lime and none but the best certified seed.

(20) Mr. Fink (farm name soon to be announced) has some Red Rock wheat and Rosen rye, both from certified seed, that are so plump and vigorous and grown on ground so clean that they should be in great demand as seed.

(21) Rosen rye outyields common rye two to one.

(22) Most of us sow fall rye too late. If we fitted the ground as carefully, used Rosen rye, and sowed earlier, we would have choice rye, and far larger yields.

(23) On the C. C. Fink farm, a windmill pumps water to barrel in kitchen. Overflow goes on to stock tank. When not needed there, a shut-off turns it into a cement 60-barrel cistern under a neat little shop.

(24) Not enough acreage of root crops (carrots, mangels, ruta bagas) raised for winter feed on Crawford county farms.

(25) Whose farm do you suppose is to be known by the pretty name "Level Acres" hereafter? Mr. and Mrs. O. B. Scott's in South Branch township.

(26) Lime tells. On the C. C. Fink farm you can see to an inch in the new seeding of sweet clover, just where lime was used and where not.

(27) Not enough bees kept in the county—practically none. A good chance for persons with small capital, in three parts of the county.

(28) Going to sow some fall wheat to help out in your poultry business next year? Should be sowed before September 15. Red Rock wheat is good.

(29) Most of the swine of the county are kept in barren lots; the owner feeding skim milk and some weeds occasionally. Poor way to grow pork. Once try an acre block of alfalfa with skim milk and you will never go back to the old way.

(30) If the time spent running after marsh hay were spent in saving manure and raising feed, some farms would be in better condition.

(31) We have a splendid, registered, four year old Holstein bull to loan at once to some Crawford county farmer.

This bull belongs to the New York Central lines, and was loaned to us through the courtesy of that railroad and its agricultural agent, Mr. E. J. Leenhouts.

Whoever gets this magnificent animal gets him free and keeps the service fees.

Where is the lucky farmer and the lucky neighborhood to improve their stock thus cheaply.

We will need to act quickly to prevent the animal being sent to some other county.

(32) Farmers, road commissioners or others can get the explosive of county agent, A. C. Lytle, at Grayling, at 10 cents a pound, if they hurry. Two weeks ago there were only 3500 pounds left out of the whole new car.

Time on Shipboard

The striking of bells on board ship is a custom of considerable antiquity. Originally the time was kept by half-hour sandglasses and each time the glass was turned the boy in charge struck a bell, and after striking ran along the deck crying out, "One hour passed in two turns and more will pass if God will!"

African Chief Gave Name to Zulu Tribe

The name "Zulu," which means "sky," was, not further back than a hundred years, confined to a small and insignificant tribe, occupying that part of the White Umfolosi valley which falls between the Mhlabatini magistracy on the north and that of Melmoth on the south, according to Ad-venture Magazine. Zulu, son of a certain Malandela, flourished in Zululand probably during the Sixteenth century. This son is said to have quarreled with his elder brother Qwabe, who took exception to the former being presented by his mother with a certain white ox, with the result that Zulu left with his followers to occupy the White Umfolosi valley, while Qwabe went to live nearer the coast on the south side of the Umhlatuze river and in what is known as Eshowe district.

It was with the help of the chief of the Mtweta tribe that Tshaka, who was not the proper heir, became chief of the Zulu tribe. No sooner did he become chief than he began to build up an extraordinary military organization, and to attempt what had never been attempted before, namely, to fuse the various tribes into a nation.

Lesson to Humanity Found in Bee Hives

It is more than sweets and fruits and many a lovely flower that would fall us, lacking bees. We would lack books—a few books. In fact, more books have been written about bees than about any other domestic animal. We should also lack something of sympathy and history. Beekeeping is the oldest craft in the world. As a beekeeper I am continuing an ancient line, joining the oldest of human guilds; speaking a language known of all lands; supporting and practicing an art beloved of all peoples; subscribing to a simple faith, wider than any creed or color or the folds of any flag. The bees are a good first step in an all-world brotherhood, and could well be included in any world-peace plans. The symbol of that plan might be the hive for its universality, its unbroken continuity as a peaceful occupation, no less than for its social significance—its practice of sacrifice for the common good.—Dallas Lore Sharp, in "The Spirit of the Hive."

Curse Trademark Fakers

In the latter part of October each year the English city of Sheffield celebrates its Cutlers' feast, a civic function that has been held annually since 1648, when the first of the city's master cutlers was elected. The banquet is attended by captains of industry from all over the empire, and by at least one minister of the crown. Two toasts that are always drunk with enthusiasm are: "Eternal destruction to all false marks on Sheffield goods!" and "Success to the Hallamshire Whittells." This quaint wording is explained by the fact that the park of Yorkshire where Sheffield is situated was once known as Hallamshire, while "whittell" is an old name for a knife. There is no public office more highly esteemed than this. As head of the ancient Cutlers' guild the master takes precedence next to the lord mayor of Sheffield.

Prodigious Memory

One of the sources of the late Rene Viviani's eloquence was his profound knowledge of French literature. He knew by heart thousands of verses and could recite entire acts of the classic tragedies without an error.

He demonstrated this at the time of his baccalaureate, when he agreed to surprise the examiner by his accurate analysis of the Cid.

"Can you recite a few verses of it?" the examiner asked. "Certainly," said Viviani, and had recited the whole of the first act before he was halted. On another occasion he recited the whole of Horatius and Phedre from beginning to end.—Bulgaria, Sofia.

An Expert

"Julia, do you know what love it?" The young man put the question in an intense voice.

"Yes," replied the girl, firmly.

"But do you really know?" he asked again. "Have you ever been the object of a love as undying as the sun, as all-pervading as the air, as wonderful as the stars? Have you ever loved and been loved like that, Julia?"

In an agony of suspense he waited for her reply.

"Have I?" she murmured. "If you will come up into our boxroom, I can show you a trunk full of letters, and three albums full of photographs, and in my jewel-case are seven engagement rings!"

Transmitting Light Rays

The bureau of standards says that the transmission factor of smooth, clear glass is about 92 per cent in perpendicularly incident light, the loss being that reflected at the two surfaces. The amount of light transmitted varies with the angle of incidence and the refractive index of the glass. The reflector will absorb from 10 to 40 per cent of the light incident upon it, depending upon its surface.

Victor in Life's Race

Life is a test of fitness. In running his race a man should be able to pass the winning post with head up, heart light, eye clear, and conscience at peace. If he can do so he is not "one who also ran," but the captain of his own destiny.—Orin.

THE NATURAL FEELING

The man in the automobile may be opposed to the Eighteenth Amendment, but he will instantly discharge a drinking chauffeur. The train may be crowded with delegates to the anti-prohibition convention, but they would mob the engineer who would take a drink while drawing precious freight. The industrial magnate may talk critically of sumptuary laws, but he will apply them like a despot to the man who watches over the driving power of his vast establishment. When safety is involved, we are all dries.—Senator William E. Borah.

HOME, DAD AND THE BOY

By FRANK H. CHELEY

(© F. H. Cheley, Denver, Colo.)

The Trained Dad

HE IS the man who has made it his business to study the Dad-business.

His slogan is: "It pays to know."

He is a student of his problem.

He recognizes that the more one knows about boy-nature, the less physical punishment one needs to use.

He realizes that parenthood is a profession, perhaps the noblest profession, in fact a life-calling, a fine art based upon genuine science, and seeks constantly to be increasingly skillful.

He knows that each boy is just a collection of twenty thousand wiggles, each wiggle with a meaning, and trains himself to understand the language.

He believes the boy without a "playground" will become the man without a job, and that to do too much for a boy guarantees that he will do nothing for himself.

He is determined to master the Job of Being a Dad and uses every legitimate means.

Soul's Hard Road

There is no short cut, no patent tramway to wisdom. After all the centuries of invention, the soul's path lies through the thorny wilderness which must still be trodden in solitude, with bleeding feet and sobs for help as it was trodden by them of old time.—George Eliot.

Leads in River Tonnage

The tonnage passing through the Detroit river, which connects Lake Erie and Lake St. Clair, exceeded in volume that passing through any other river in the world.

Why I'm going to the Greater MICHIGAN STATE FAIR

By Boris Joe

WONDERS RIGHT AT HOME

A good many folks never see any wonders except in foreign countries. It's a pretty good plan to know your own home state before starting off on a tour of the world. Sort of acts as a standard of comparison. You remember that story about the chap that travelled far and wide trying to find riches not knowing there was an acre of diamonds in his own back yard. Going to the Fair makes you realize you're a citizen of a great state, with wonderful agricultural, industrial and natural resources. The exhibits sort of picture the whole thing for you. When Abner Cole got back from his trip around the world he brought me a present. "This piece of pottery," he says, "came from Old King Tut's tomb in Egypt." "Did it," I says, "I happen to know that tancy bowl was made by Clem Riggs, the potter, that used to live in our own town." And I was right about it too, because my wife and I gave it to Abner for a wedding present when he was married twenty-five years ago.

PROGRESS OF THE GREATER MICHIGAN STATE FAIR

A symbol of prosperity is this grand champion Poland China Boar. All wealth, say economists, is based on the products of the soil. The Fair will show the importance of the farmer to the prosperity of the state. And while teaching this valuable lesson, it will give the throngs who attend a splendid entertainment, including the finest harness events and auto races ever seen here.

LYDIA of the PINES

By HONORE WILLISIE

Author of "Still Jim" and "The Heart of the Desert."

The heroine, Lydia, is a wonderful girl character developing in the sort of love story American men like, for it pictures the type of girl real men are always keen about. Through a seemingly hopeless tangle of difficult surroundings, she blazes her own way to splendid womanhood. Her honesty, ambition and affectionate loyalty never waver, and are responsible for the optimism and romance which the story fairly radiates.

NEW MEXICAN PLOT IS BARED BY U. S.

Papers Seized by Officials Reveal Extensive Revolutionary Scheme.

San Diego, Calif. — Information showing a widespread revolutionary plot against the Mexican government has been uncovered by United States officials, Capt. A. A. Hopkins, Department of Justice agent, announced.

The information indicates that the Insurrecto band, led by Gen. Enrique Estrada, former Mexican secretary of war, constituted only a small part of the plan.

Hopkins said that a partial study of the papers seized when Estrada and his band were arrested near here a few days ago shows an extensive revolutionary plot.

El Paso, Texas. — Conflicting announcements by Mexican officials failed to shed light on reports that Mexican troops had been ordered to a border point opposite Columbus, N. M., following the discovery of an alleged plot by a band of heavily armed men to cross into Mexico in a revolutionary movement.

Manuel M. Marcurens, collector of customs at Juarez, said no troops had been ordered from Chihuahua City to Palomas, the border point. Gen. Roman Lopez, commandant at Juarez, however, insisted that troops have been sent to Palomas.

Mexico City. — Considerable hope has been aroused that the religious question may be solved, as President Calles has suggested in a communication to the Catholic episcopate, by bringing the matter before congress with a view to securing a constitutional amendment.

If the episcopate offered amendments to the constitution, the President declares he would not use his power to have them withdrawn from congress.

In a statement replying to the letter of President Calles, the episcopate neither accepts nor rejects the President's proposal that it seek congressional or Supreme court relief.

Los Angeles, Calif. — Federal Judge Paul J. McCormick signed a warrant of detention authorizing official seizure of arms taken from Gen. Enrique Estrada's band rounded up near the border.

ELECTION NOTICES MUST BE PUBLISHED IN PAPER

The last legislature passed a law that registration and election notices must be published three times in a newspaper. This applies to townships, cities, and villages. Heretofore posted notices have been all that was necessary, but now the notices must be published in a newspaper to make the election legal.

Officials in townships in which there is no newspaper printed will do well to bear this new provision of the statutes in mind.
